Conflict in Northwest Syria.

Violence continued in northwest Syria. With the 5 March 2020 ceasefire weakening, Russia assumed a more active role in hostilities in the region. Turkey continued to build up its military presence as well, while withdrawing its military bases from nearby Government of Syria (GoS)-controlled territory. Fighting between GoS armed forces and their allies on the one side and armed opposition groups on the other side has been concentrated primarily in the frontline areas near the Jabal al-Zawiyah area, Idlib Governorate.

&lt;sup>1</sup> Figure 1 depicts areas of the dominant actors' control and influence. While "control" is a relative term in a complex, dynamic conflict, territorial control is defined as an entity having power over use of force as well as civil/administrative functions in an area. Russia, Iran, and Hezbollah maintain a presence in Syrian government-controlled territory. Non-state organized armed groups (NSOAG), including the Kurdish-dominated SDF and Turkish-backed opposition groups operate in areas not under GoS control. The area along the junction of the Syrian border with Iraq and Jordan is a 55km de-confliction zone, established by the US-led coalition that also includes a number of aligned local armed groups. Patrols are also depicted in the map to show the presence of actors that may have influence in an area. This is particularly relevant as US and Russian forces regularly patrol towns and routes in the northeast. While they do not control local administration or local forces, there is an assumption of a high degree of coordination with local de facto authorities. clashes between the two sides.<sup>17</sup> Since December 2020, minor clashes and arrests have occurred between the SDF and GoS. This has resulted occasionally in sieges between the two sides. Although Russia has mediated these conflicts, the Kurdish Autonomous Administration (KAA) officials have accused Russia of attempting to blackmail Kurdish forces, especially over Ain Issa, Ar-Raqqa Governorate.<sup>18</sup>

20 April

Clashes broke out between the SDF affiliate Asayish (Internal Security Forces) and the GoS-backed<sup>20</sup> National Defense Forces (NDF) after the former arrested an NDF commander in Qamishli, Al-Hassakah Governorate.<sup>21</sup> An Asayish fighter was killed in the clashes.

22 April

A tribal leader who participated in the ceasefire negotiations in Qamishli was assassinated by unidentified gunmen. Pro-opposition and Kurdish sources blamed the NDF for the killing.<sup>22</sup> Clashes continued as the Asayish captured several NDF checkpoints in the Al-Tai neighborhood of Qamishli.<sup>23</sup>

23 April

Russian mediation continued as clashes between Asayish and NDF went on.<sup>24</sup>

25 April

The Asayish announced a "permanent truce" mediated by Russia in Qamishli.<sup>25</sup> The Asayish said that residents forced to flee will be able to return.<sup>26</sup> The Asayish would remain in control of the Al-Tai neighborhood.<sup>27</sup>
